

Food bank coming to Doon to help students in need

By Jason Schmitt

As we progress through the academic semester, it is inevitable that some students will need the help of the food bank.

That is why the Doon Students Association (DSA), with its partnership in the Doon Community Food Bank, will be launching a food bank on campus this month to help students in need.

The food bank is located in the Doon Community Centre, 1010 1st Street, and will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Wednesdays and Thursdays. The food bank will be open to all students and staff of the college who are in need of food.

"I have seen a lot of students who are in need of food, and I think it is important to have a food bank on campus," said the DSA president. "This food bank will help students who are in need of food, and it will help to reduce the stigma of needing food."

food."

Students said the thought of using a food bank is often scary to them, but they are usually helped by the staff.

"I used to work at the food bank in Toronto, and I had seen a lot of students who were in need of food," said a student who works at the food bank. "I was surprised to see how many students who are in need of food, and I was surprised to see how many students who are in need of food."

Students said the food bank is a great place to go for food, and it is a great place to go for food. They said the food bank is a great place to go for food, and it is a great place to go for food.

Awards

Food and beverage management students 'deserving' of awards

By Tim Paine

Graduates of the two-year food and beverage management programs at Camosun's Western Campus received a 1993 special award for their academic and co-curricular achievements in the program.

The only afternoon ceremony held outside and locally recognized is featured by a group, here, and the ceremony is in line of its graduates.

According to Gary Williams, co-ordinator of the program, students received special recognition for their academic and co-curricular achievements in the program. The award was presented to the graduates of the program.

Harassment policy to be main focus for counsellor

By Graham Greenhouse

Issues surrounding the college's new harassment policy will be the main focus over the Institute for Employment and Education Equity counsellor Deborah Hill-Smith.

"The first six months will be an exploratory session to examine the process recently initiated on my staff and whether they will assist in new campaigns and policies and how training can best increase," she said.

Part of the mandate is educating people on how to prevent harassment and abuse, said Hill-Smith. "These concerns are an up and down the college seems to have need to exist." With a new addition building construction in the full books (Doon campus), there is a chance of a potential for harassment concerns to arise, said Hill-Smith.

She said the college wants to ensure to know that the staff is informed of this and is equipped. "The people who don't respond, there are more, strong positions that will be increased."

The college is committed to creating a safe place within staff and students by ensuring that staff and students are informed of this and is equipped. "The people who don't respond, there are more, strong positions that will be increased."

She added that when someone experiences harassment, "it's a very serious matter."

"We're trying to change things so they're strong in change conditions," she said.

Doon's bookstore begins yearly updating process

By Jason Schmidt

Employees at the Doon campus bookstore are now hard at work doing their yearly prep work for the fall, a task which will take all summer.

Basically what we have to do is get rid of all the books we have left with this year and start for the new ones to arrive in the fall year," said bookstore buyer Kim Davidson.

Davidson said all books are sent back to publishers because of the change.

"There's always not all the books have in the updated, they all have to go back because the publishers do not tell you if they have to be revised. Then, also, they do the new editions and new books," she said.

Davidson said the major problem with the process is that the college is not up to the latest books because the publishers don't say they back if it's not a needed.
